IMPACT: No Fiscal Impact

Summary of Legislation: This bill establishes a new procedure for partitioning real and personal property that: (1) requires a court to refer the matter to mediation; and (2) requires the court to order that the property be sold at auction if the parties are not able to reach an agreement during mediation. It repeals superseded provisions.

Effective Date: July 1, 2012.

Explanation of State Revenues:

Explanation of Local Expenditures: This bill would simplify the current process of dividing land and personal property that is held by more than one person.

Mediation is an informal process in which a neutral third party – known as a mediator – helps two or more parties reach an agreement on some or all of the parties’ differences. In the mediation process, the mediator helps the parties identify important issues, clarify misunderstandings, explore solutions, and negotiate a settlement rather than having a trial. In mediation, decision-making by the parties must be voluntary, so only those issues upon which both parties can agree will be included in the settlement.

Generally, the parties select a mediator of their own choice and agree on the method of compensating the mediator. Usually, the mediator's fee will be shared equally by the parties.
